Regeneration in the Five Element Regeneration® is a unique way of getting healthy again — We offer a wholistic approach — We help keep animals in shape

Who we are

Welcome among us. We are honoured that you have chosen Energy veterinary products for the care of your animal friends. We believe that this system will provide you as a breeder and your animal companion with everything necessary for their good health, vitality and a prosperous life.

Energy is a therapeutic concept that has proven timeless over decades. It is based on the principles of traditional Chinese medicine, phytotherapy, aromatherapy, homeopathy and on the perfect synergy of the latest scientific knowledge and modern technological procedures. The result is gentle, highly effective, completely natural products that cover most needs in terms of prevention and therapy.

We place great emphasis not only on the quality of our products, but also on professional expertise, good advice, close cooperation with veterinarians, and broad and accessible education, which form an inherent part of our mission.

You are entering the Energy ecosystem. We believe that you and your animal companion will feel comfortable in it.

Energy products given context

The digital world is inherently characterised by two states – on and off. There is nothing in between. As everything around us becomes digital, and the pace of switching on and off continues to accelerate, it is difficult not to be left with the impression that one's health, as well as that of those closest to us, including our animal companions, also requires instant solutions. When a health problem arises, you search the appropriate database for the exact drug, administer it at a precise time and dose, and at a precise time expect the result. If the desired effect does not materialise, you try another product in a similar way. It is not only the accelerated pace at which time seems to pass that leads us to this way of thinking, but also the need to be efficient and not think too much about it. Despite all the progress mankind has made, both we and our pets still face many increasingly difficult health problems that are difficult to diagnose, are persistent and also recurrent.

Our concept is definitely not an instant solution to all health problems. However, it will guide you “from digital to analogue” so that collectively we can understand the causes and circumstances in which we or our animal companions have become unbalanced. The journey to acquire this knowledge may be longer, but it will lead us to our destination and also teach us to look at context. This is useful for healthcare, in the family, in interpersonal relationships, as well as in nature or while navigating the digital world.

Five Element Regeneration® concentrate preparations – modern form of phytotherapy

The use of medicinal plants is a therapeutic method almost as old as humanity itself. Alchemical procedures of the past have been transformed over the centuries into a respected, effective and gentle way to solve, to a lesser or greater extent, serious health problems. To achieve a deep and effective result, we decided to develop an advanced form of phytotherapy products, called super concentrates.

IN WHAT WAY ARE THEY UNIQUE?

The production of any extract-based product actually begins directly in nature. Herbs are obtained by free harvesting or in designated herb gardens, where they are carefully collected and the desired part separated. Some of them go for further processing fresh, while for others, slow drying and storage for later use are best.

Mixtures of herbs prepared in this way, which have to match the exact formula of the future preparation, are ready for the first and most important technological step, which is extraction. Although there are now countless ways to extract active ingredients from plant material, the best and most effective of them is still the aqueous-alcohol base. The herbs are therefore immersed in this bath for an average of two weeks to gradually release and give their best.

The second phase is the more technologically advanced one that also distinguishes our products and their resulting functionality from all others. The extracts are placed in a vacuum concentrator and evaporated, resulting in a supercritical concentrate free of measurable alcohol. Compared to conventional extracts, it has multiple, therapeutic values of the active ingredients and, at the same time, constitutes up to 90% of the content in the final product.

Gentle action of homeopathic ingredient in selected products

A significant constituent of the selected products is the low-dilution polycomposite homeopathic component. The mechanism of its action is based on treatment like for like. Through a pattern of symptoms, it triggers natural defence responses that enable the body to kick-start its own regeneration processes. In the body, it mimics the control mechanisms of the subcortical centres of the brain that regulate the vegetative nervous system and the work of the internal organs. In this way, it directly affects important biochemical reactions and, with a synergistic effect, together with other active substances, enhances, extends and deepens the action of the preparation. Individual homeopathics are arranged in the composition of the preparations in such a way that they complement each other and, as a result, work in a much broader way than homeopathics administered separately, which is often the way experienced homeopaths work.

Principles of regeneration

AFFECTING ENERGY SYSTEMS

With Energy veterinary preparations you will encounter a unique phenomenon, whereby the herbs produce a completely different effect on the animal body than you are used to. Classical medicinal mixtures act against the causative agents of a disease, replace a lack of enzymes, supplement vitamins, building substances and minerals.

The Five Element Regeneration® Energy product range includes five herbal concentrates, the composition of which work through energy systems on the activity of individual organs, tissues or entire organ systems, as well as on the emotions and mental state of an animal.

Unlike classical treatment, in addition to direct action, the regenerative procedure also affects organs in an indirect way. This means that it creates conditions in the body for the optimal functioning of tissues and organs. This seemingly minor and, at first glance, not entirely visible principle of action of the preparations is often behind the positive results in the treatment of severe and seemingly intractable diseases and syndromes. This happens because by creating a suitable environment for the proper functioning of the affected tissue, its function is gradually restored.

REST INSTEAD OF BURDEN

So what is regeneration? This is about returning the body's function to its original state. There is no guarantee that the anatomical changes can be reversed, but the situation will not deteriorate further and the functioning of the affected organ will return. Take as an example liver enlargement after infection. Liver function tests will return to normal after proper recovery, but the liver enlargement may remain due to the build-up of fibrous tissue during healing. Regeneration occurs after every disease or injury. How does this work in animals? They simply follow their instincts and create conditions to avoid pain and regain strength as quickly as possible. The solution to the natural need for regeneration is rest. Pain is not meant to torment us or our pet, but acts as a signal that you can no longer go beyond this barrier, preventing greater damage. It leads an animal, for example, not to burden a damaged joint, to lie down and not run. Or when an animal has digestive problems, it stops eating. All in order to minimise the burden on the affected organ. In contrast, humans usually take painkillers and then put further strain on the joint, making it worse. Or they swallow an antacid and eat something they like, even if they don't feel well afterwards... It is therefore important to remember that effective regeneration is accompanied by a reduction in the activity of the organ or tissue concerned. However, rest alone is not enough; tissue healing requires an appropriate background. In other words, it is necessary to improve the blood supply to the organ, drain away metabolites through the lymph, ensure tissue calmness by suppressing nerve impulses, adjust the metabolism of the organ, i.e. instead of exerting cells, all energy should be concentrated on their renewal. The body needs to kick-start immune processes in terms of removing damaged cells so that new cells have a place to grow and fill the original defect with fully functional tissue.

NUTRIENTS, MINERALS AND VITAMINS

To ensure that an animal has the strength and resources to do all this, it encourages us to supply it with the necessary nutrients, vitamins, minerals and building materials of the highest possible quality and, of course, purely natural composition. This is the gold standard of Energy's adjunctive veterinary products.

They are mostly herbal concentrates in the form of drops, some in the form of capsules. These adjunctive preparations can be used in combination with the Five Element Regeneration® concentrates for specific indications. The use of vitamin and mineral products can be placed in the hands of the user (the pet owner) at their discretion and knowledge. This doesn't need to be expert-level knowledge. Just plain common sense and good judgment suffice. For example, when an animal suffers from joint pain or bone damage, it is advisable to provide its body with building materials in the form of Skelevet or vitamin D contained in Omegavet. Sometimes, for example, an animal may suffer but with no apparent cause, in which case it may benefit from additional vitamins (Nutrivet) and minerals (Fytovet). And so on.

For further information on our adjunctive products and their main uses, including recommended dosages, please refer to the website www.vet.energy.

The Five Element Regeneration® system is a unique way to cleanse the body

Figuratively placed in a pentagram, these symbolise balance and perfect health. The five elements: Earth, Metal, Water, Wood and Fire are interconnected. This represents a unique tool for a holistic approach to health. The majority of people will associate it with traditional Chinese medicine, which has applied the teachings on the five elements for several thousand years.

FIVE ELEMENT THEORY

In a healthy animal's body there is a balance between these elements. If this balance is disturbed, this manifests itself in disease (whether physical or psychological). Knowledge of the nature of the five elements and the energy relationships between them can be used for the diagnosis and subsequent regeneration of the body. Based on the manifested symptoms and the resulting connections, it is possible to find ways to bring individual elements of the animal's pentagram and its entire body back into balance. For this we use the unique Five Element Regeneration® system. The main pillar of this is represented by our five natural herbal concentrates, which correspond to the five elements.

FIVE ELEMENT REGENERATION® CONCENTRATES

– REGENERATION AXIS

Each of the five elements of the pentagram includes one so-called Five Element Regeneration® preparation. These concentrated extracts in the form of drops contain 12–17 herbal ingredients supplemented with a specific homeopathic agent that potentiates their effect. The herbal compositions are selected and put together according to the principles of traditional Chinese medicine so that they act on organs and tissues that fall under a particular element. Because the energy cycles between the elements is dynamic, and each element also affects the others (see figure – arrows around the circumference of the circle and inside), each concentrate therefore also has a certain effect on all five elements. This can be used in so-called direct and indirect regeneration.

Under direct regeneration we understand the action of the herbal concentrate of the relevant element on the harmonisation of organs and tissues that fall under this element.

For indirect regeneration, any preparation is chosen other than that which falls under the element whose organs we want to influence based on the diagnosis. This approach therefore utilises the energy relations between the elements shown around the circumference of the pentagram.

Regavet – Wood

Regavet falls under the element Wood and therefore directly affects everything that influences this element. In animals, it is used to activate metabolism, generate energy, increase vitality and slow down age-related degenerative processes. Regavet improves appetite and makes digestion more efficient, protects the kidneys in chronic insufficiency and supports the heart in case of weakening. It is excellent for musculoskeletal pain associated with osteoarthritis.

Korovet – Fire

This concentrate falls under the element Fire and instils vitality and sparkle, promotes joy of life and reduces aggression. It directly affects the heart, pericardium, the entire vascular system, and also the small intestine. It works with the soul of an animal. The most common use in veterinary medicine is in convulsive conditions including epilepsy, neurological and psychological problems, stress and also in acute liver and gallbladder diseases. It helps with anaemia by promoting haematopoiesis.

Gynevet – Earth

This herbal preparation falls under the element Earth. It affects the hormonal balance and renewal of cells and tissues in the body. Its help with numerous dermatological and endocrine problems in animals. Gynevet often typically used by breeders – optimises the oestrous cycle, prepares females for mating and pregnancy, promotes lactation and maternal behaviour. In addition, in animals, it protects the vascular system from clots and the skin and mucous membranes (including the lining of the colon) from dryness.

Virovet – Metal

The effects of Virovet means it falls under the element Metal. It deals with the issue of borders, specifically targeting the lungs, colon and skin. It supports overall immunity and therefore the body's ability to defend itself against viral, bacterial or fungal agents. It is an excellent helper for offspring – helps them manage weaning and the first series of vaccinations. Reduces separation anxiety. In bitches, it relieves the symptoms of false pregnancy. Increases urine production, dissolves some urinary stones.

Renovet – Water

The last of the five so-called Five Element Regeneration® concentrates is Renovet. It falls under the element Water, acting on water and mineral metabolism, acid-base balance and detoxification through the elimination of substances dissolved in water. It affects the entire urinary system, lymph and sweat glands. It also promotes bone formation, fracture healing and tooth quality. Relieves cough and diarrhoea originating in the colon, heals hot inflammatory skin diseases.

Five Element Regeneration® herbal concentrates can be used either alone or combined with other so-called adjunctive products from the Energy veterinary range, depending on the indications.

The Five Element Regeneration® - a symbol of balance and perfect health

Adjunctive products in the veterinary product range

Supplementary products can be used in addition to the Five Element Regeneration® essential herbal concentrates to enhance, extend and deepen their effect, depending on the recovery needs. In most cases, these adjunctive preparations can either be used separately or freely in combination with one another. They affect a number of processes in the body, supporting your pet's immunity, strengthening their body and fitness, replenishing important substances, and tuning their psyche.

MULTI-COMPONENT CONCENTRATES

The configuration of the herbal composition of these products and their mechanism of action is similar to Five Element Regeneration® concentrates.

You can expect a strong, anabolic effect from Kingvet. It is administered to animals in training, exercise and sport. It helps them to adapt, modulating their stress response by acting on the adrenal glands. It affects the musculoskeletal, urinary and respiratory systems, as well as has a positive effect on the heart muscle. It is popular with breeders in the reproduction of animals, stimulating non-specific immunity.

Etovet mainly affects the psyche and digestion. It is therefore used in animals to calm them down before stressful events (visits to the vet, New Year's Eve, travel) and as a support element in dealing with behavioural disorders. It helps with training and adaptation to new conditions and situations. Due to the effect on the spleen pathway according to TCM, it is prescribed in cases of weakened digestion, which in animals manifests itself in loss of appetite, bloating, scratching of the abdomen and loose stools.

SINGLE-COMPONENT HERBAL PREPARATIONS

The following three herbal concentrates use the power of the herbs individually.

Imunovet is also called "dragon's blood" due to the reddish-brown colour of the resin, which is derived from the Amazonian tree Croton lechleri. In veterinary practice, it is used as a natural antibiotic; it has an anti-inflammatory effect. It accelerates wound healing, including surgical wounds, stimulates haematopoiesis and improves immune responses. Imunovet is recommended to be taken with or after food, given on an empty stomach it may irritate the stomach. It can also be used externally.

Annovet is obtained as an extract from the plant Annona muricata, its active ingredients are called acetogenins. They have the ability to lower blood pressure, are antidepressant, antiparasitic and can reduce energy production in cells with less efficient energy metabolism, including some types of cancer cells. In veterinary medicine, Annovet is therefore used as an adjunctive product in oncology and furthermore, due to its antihypertensive effects, in the management of chronic renal insufficiency, thyroid hyperfunction and heart disease.

Cannabivet with its 3.3% CBD (cannabidiol) in fractionated coconut oil has anti-inflammatory, analgesic and soothing effects. We recommend it for use in older animals for neurasthenia, osteoarthritis, cancer, epilepsy and stress diseases such as feline FLUTD.

SUPPLEMENTARY PRODUCTS

A group of products containing minerals, vitamins and other bioactive substances in original, comprehensive natural complexes. These substances function as building blocks or enzymatic cofactors in the body – elements necessary for the proper functioning of metabolic processes. They are made in capsule form with the exception of Omegavet and Fytovet.

Skelevet contains collagen in combination with sepia bone powder and rosehip and nettle extracts. It supports the process of bone formation and fracture healing, nourishes cartilage, skin and all skin derivatives (fur, claws, horn of digital pads or hooves, bird feathers, reptile shell). It is suitable for pups in the phase of rapid growth and tooth replacement and also for older animals with musculoskeletal disorders. Also after orthopaedic procedures at any age.

The probiotic cultures and chlorella present in Probiovet favourably influence the composition of the gut microbiome and therefore contribute to the optimisation of the digestive process. It is suitable for dyspepsia, feeding with commercial feeds and for planned dietary changes, but especially after treatment with antibiotics to restore health-promoting microflora.

Nutrivet supplies the animal's body with a balanced complex of natural vitamins and bioactive substances in the most accessible form. It helps recovery after surgery, after a history of illness and also wherever there is an increased burden or requirement for quality and nutritionally rich nutrition. It prepares the animals for reproduction, returns the females to fitness after childbirth and lactation. It regenerates liver cells and heals stomach ulcers.

Cytovet is a veterinary preparation containing humates. It has detoxifying, deacidifying and anti-inflammatory action. It gently regenerates the liver due to the content of silymarin, cleanses wounds, and is suitable for rinsing during purulent processes. An adjunctive product in oncology.

Omegavet contains Japanese anchovy fish oil and is a unique source of fat-soluble vitamins (vitamin A, D, E), iodine and unsaturated omega-3 fatty acids. These are valued mainly due to their antioxidant effects for the prevention and treatment of inflammation, not only in orthopaedics, cardiology and nephrology. As components of cell membranes, myelin and cholesterol metabolism, these unsaturated fatty acids are important for the proper functioning of the immune response, the nervous system and for hormonal balance.

Fytovet is the ideal product for replenishing an animal's body with minerals. It contains a colloidal solution of the most important elements and has 98% absorption.

EXTERNAL USE AND VETERINARY COSMETICS

Audivet is suitable for topical skin and mucous membrane treatment due to its soothing and anti-inflammatory effects. It can be used for dermatitis, gingivitis and external ear canals. It inhibits the growth of fungi and yeast, it is suitable for application in the ear for inflammations of allergic or yeast origin. It should not come into contact with broken skin - it can sting.

The composition of Tickvet is made up of selected essential oils with a repellent and skin protecting properties. It is intended for application to the skin to reduce the risk of tick and flea infestations in dogs and cats.

Epiwet is a natural shampoo suitable for routine maintenance of a dog's skin and coat. It contains apple cider vinegar and essential plant oils with repellent and anti-inflammatory effect. It has a neutral pH and soothes the skin.

Vetbalm protective ointment with healing effect is designed for animal paws (digital pads, claws and claw beds) exposed to excessive chemical, thermal and mechanical influences. For preventive and therapeutic use.

Holistic approach to animal health or how to support the effects of Energy products

„Healing means to become whole, complete. Heal and whole both come from holy: becoming the one being you were born to be.“
— Joseph Serwach —

It is no coincidence that the English words heal, whole and holy come from the same foundation of “hale”. To heal is to become complete, to become whole, and therefore to become closer to your divine essence.

HERBS AS THE FOUNDATION

Energy herbal concentrates work on many levels in the animal body. As Five Element Regeneration® suggests, their effect is not limited to the physical body, i.e. organs, tissues and their function. Energy preparations also affect the psyche – emotions and feelings, and therefore affect the behaviour of animals and their social interactions. Their energy effect and impact on the regenerative capacity of the body and the immune system is an invisible but absolutely essential part of the healing effects, which is well known to all who work with Energy preparations. With their help, problems can be solved on the physical, functional, mental and energy levels.

FINDING (IM)BALANCE

To achieve consistently positive results in treatment, particularly in chronic diseases, it is necessary to take a closer look at the influences that can throw the live systems off balance and return them to equilibrium. The strength of each whole is limited by its weakest component. That is why it is necessary to identify those places that need strengthening or harmonising. Working with Five Element Regeneration® means that the condition of all five elements needs to be examined based on symptoms and their evolution over time. In this way, energy blocks in the animal's body can be identified and effective remedial steps can be determined. First and foremost is to choose a suitable preparation. However, it is not only with herbs that the animal stays alive (and well), and as powerful as Energy preparations are, it would be foolish to think that this is the end of the therapeutic work.

IMPORTANCE OF MEDICAL HISTORY

The animal usually comes accompanied by its owner. Because they can't tell us much verbally by themselves, the person who brings them becomes their spokesperson. According to past practitioners, the old adage “listen to your client, they will tell you their diagnosis” is therefore doubly true in veterinary medicine.

In other words, it is definitely worth listening carefully to what is said and to perceive what lies behind the information being given. The description of the symptoms, daily routine, environment, social relationships and behaviour of the pet tell us about the condition of each element of its pentagram. Our interest is in the diet, digestion, sleep quality, medication or recent veterinary procedures and treatments. The subjective perception of the pet's difficulties by the breeder and the breeder's personal expression are also important, as they indicate the psychosomatic influences that affect the animal.

PSYCHOSOMATIC TRANSMISSION

In addition to our own emotions and feelings resulting from nature, the animal's experience and social interactions, our pets are also affected by so-called secondary emotions. These emotions do not originate directly in the animal's body, but originate in its vicinity, in its everyday environment. Their source is most often the owner, family, human pack. How is this possible? We know from quantum physics and other fields that everything is essentially energy with different vibrations and that fine-matter energy is able to affect matter – coarser energy. Pets differ from wild animals by, among other things, a more perfectly developed emotional body, which, based on resonance, is able to receive the energy of the full range of emotions of the animal's human companions.

„Energy preparations also affect the psyche – emotions and feelings, and consequently affect animal behaviour and social interactions.“

When collecting medical histories, our interest is therefore also in the health of the people closest to the animal – because we often find that the difficulties of both are similar and the imbalance common to both parties. In the therapeutic work itself, typically when dealing with chronic or recurring health problems, it is clear that in order to be successful in treating an animal, it is necessary to deal with its owner, the human pack.

OTHER HARMONISATION INSTRUMENTS

When working with animal patients, we often encounter the question of why treatment fails despite following recommended medical practices, which, according to current knowledge of veterinary medicine, should work. However, at Energy we know that there are many sides to health and disease, so we look beyond traditional allopathic treatments to other options for restoring animals to health. Replenishing and energising with herbs, essential oils, massages, physiotherapy and acupuncture. Recognition of psychosocial and psychosomatic influences and work with the owner of the animal. Custom-made food. Last but not least, learning about and ensuring the natural needs of the animal not only in relation to its species, but also, for example, according to the specifics of individual breeds.

Such a holistic approach to animal health is commonplace for Energy therapists.

BACK TO NATURE EQUALS GETTING BACK TOGETHER

There is wholeness in the simplicity of it all. Sometimes you really just have to be and let be, accept and let go, surrender to a higher power. Give the body the space and time to regenerate. Because the need to regain equilibrium is one of the basic characteristics of all living systems. Turn off or at least downsize the mind. Connect with the heart and with the song of your own soul. Balance yin and yang, sympathetic and parasympathetic. Give weight and importance to rest and relaxation. Put yourself first and take care of your own happiness and satisfaction. Our loved ones, whether two- or four-legged, will psychosomatically capture and mirror this...

IEVET seminars training cycle (Energyvet Institute)

We have a range of marketing materials and digital media resources containing information about Energy products and their use (websites, leaflets, brochures, webinars, social networks), as well as active web and telephone based counselling. In addition, we also organise seminars. They are intended for those who want to learn more comprehensively, to consolidate, deepen and, most importantly, connect information.

HOW DO THE SEMINARS WORK?

The main pillar of education is the IEVET cycle. This consists of four loosely connected full-day seminars, which can be attended either individually, in any order, or as a whole package. The frequency of the cycles is twice per year, in the form of spring and autumn semesters. A certificate is awarded upon completion of all four seminars. Participation is face-to-face, with a smaller group of participants guaranteeing a friendly environment, personal approach and easier mutual alignment. IEVET seminars often also lead to the establishment of cooperation and partnerships between participants and Energy, with new advisors or lecturers emerging from among the graduates.

WHO CAN PARTICIPATE?

Practically anyone interested in Energy veterinary preparations and the whole philosophy of Five Element Regeneration® and a holistic approach to animal health. Many dog and cat breeders, veterinarians and veterinary assistants, physiotherapists, managers of cat cafes, dog shelters, pet supplies, pet shops and dog salons have successfully completed our seminars. Not forgetting the representatives of Energy Clubs and Consulting Centres who come to us to deepen their knowledge of the animal kingdom and exchange their experience from practice. Very often the health of their own animals and a good experience with Energy preparations or positive references are the motivation for participants. We are pleased that interest in natural medicine and a holistic approach to animal health is growing.

WHAT TOPICS DO WE COVER?

At the seminars, participants learn about Five Element Regeneration® and the principles of working with it to find the causes of health problems and choose the right products. We introduce the individual preparations from the Energy veterinary product range, examine their components and the most common indications – when and where to use which products, and in which combinations. We look into botany and phytotherapy, animal microbiomes, veterinary physiology, but also the pathophysiology of the most common diseases and syndromes. During the seminars, the medical (classical and alternative) and psychosomatic approaches are intertwined; symptoms and diseases are viewed from different angles. The theory is complemented by case reports from practice. Discussion and sharing of knowledge among participants is welcomed.

For those interested in educating themselves

If you are interested in more detailed information regarding the regeneration of the body and the use of our veterinary products, you can find an up-to-date overview of the day-long seminars on the website www.vet.energy under the Education section, where application forms are also available. In addition, there is a selection of webinars on interesting topics that can be viewed via YouTube from the comfort of your own home or listened to as a podcast on your phone. Anywhere, anytime. We are still adding to the list of events.

„Give a man a fish and you will feed him for the day. Teach him how to fish and you will feed him for a lifetime.“

Closer than you think: visit our clubs and consultation centres

We live in a world that is moving towards digitalization. It can be nice to work from home, take care of official business remotely or connect with your friends abroad using social networks. But just as you enjoy the physical presence of your dog, cat or rabbit, you need to maintain interpersonal relationships and contacts. Sharing our experiences, joys and sorrows directly with others or discussing opinions and life perspectives is what enriches and moves us all forward.

ENERGY CLUBS AS OASES OF PEACE

We know this, which is why we started building a network of Energy Clubs many years ago. They are often situated in interesting places in historic city centres and create oases of peace and quiet in the busy surrounding area. Not only can you buy Energy products, but experienced therapists and other experts are on hand to give you all the information you need about natural regeneration for your pet friends. Quality diagnostics, customised therapy recommendations and follow-up care are essential. There is an opportunity for personal contact and the opportunity to discuss the individual needs of each breeder and their animal charge. Often it is only through discussion with others that the nature of a health problem, which may be a manifestation of somatisation, can be revealed and attention drawn to inappropriate care or living conditions that are incompatible with the needs of a healthy and vital animal.

What the individual clubs specifically offer depends on their possibilities and the interests of their members. Whether it's lectures, different types of therapy, open days, or other events, they are definitely worth exploring. The goal of the club leaders and their collaborators is to further expand and improve this standard. We all want to create a natural space, place and time where you and your pets feel comfortable.

WE ARE IN ALL REGIONS

However, the information and distribution space is much wider. In addition to the Energy Clubs, you can also access our Consultation Centres, of which there are several hundred across the country.

As part of their activities, they offer the sale of Energy products, provide advice, complementary therapies and other services. For a complete list and links to the Energy Clubs and Consultation Centres, visit www.vet.energy.

Join us now

If you want to gently, consistently and comprehensively care for your animal companion, we can recommend club membership. You get it for a symbolic fee along with a whole host of premium benefits.

WHAT AWAITS YOU AS A MEMBER?

Annual membership: Energy products at discounted club prices plus special monthly offers and other discounts.

Priority access: club events, lectures, advice and consultations – all with preferential treatment.

Shared bonus: do you have a wide network of friends and acquaintances and like to share positive experiences? Then the shared bonus is a form of social network reward within Energy. Your friends' activity is reflected in the amount of the reward for you based on a predetermined algorithm.

DO YOU WANT TO GO FURTHER?

Can you communicate clearly with people, empathise with their problems and share a holistic view of medicine? Then just take the Energy Certified Advisor course and deepen your involvement throughout the system. Veterinarians and people with a business spirit can start building their own network of active partners to make Energy products available to the general public. It goes without saying that being a certified advisor gives you access to member premium services, which extend to full business benefits and financial bonuses.

Look for information, your animal partner is worth it!

Quality information makes all the difference and contributes significantly to the bottom line, including how your pet will thrive.

The main source is our website www.vet.energy. Here you will find complete documentation on individual products, their method of administration and mechanism of action. You can also buy them directly in the e-shop.

If you need advice on anything related to the regeneration, detoxification or treatment of your animal's body, our telephone and online veterinary advice service is available (where you can also draw on an extensive archive of other clients' queries).

For those members of the general and professional public who are interested in educating themselves, here we offer an overview of the comprehensive IEVET training programme and a plan of other events that are being prepared in the near future. Recordings of webinars and interviews with vets on interesting and topical issues are available, with practical advice for pet owners.

We also have something to lighten the load.

The "Animal highlights from the animal kingdom" section brings extraordinary articles for every day, original author contributions, authentic experiences and inspiration. We care about expertise and objectivity, offering diversity and different points of view.

It goes without saying that the website also features important contacts for Energy Clubs, Consulting Centres, certified consultants and cooperating vets.

Quick and concise information, as well as entertainment and daily connections can be maintained through Energyvet social networks – Instagram, Facebook, YouTube.

We are constantly adding and updating a wide range of information tools for you.

Educational materials

Our values and principles

We believe in a holistic approach to the body, which succinctly expressed means "everything is related to everything".

Energy veterinary products are as natural as possible and the active substances largely come from free harvesting or organic farming.

We source raw materials only from identifiable and certified suppliers. We make a point of familiarising ourselves with the quality of the people and locations that provide the medicinal herbs, oils and other ingredients in our preparations.

We use only the finest, purest and most effective active ingredients available responsibly to maintain the absolute uniqueness of our products. Their development and formulation is always completely subordinate to this.

We understand nature as a common living space for people, animals and plants. We reject environmental destruction for profit and personal gain. We strive for harmonious interpersonal and interspecies "coexistence".

We offer products that we feed to our animals ourselves. A preventive, comprehensive approach is paramount if we want to positively influence animal health and prevent disease.

We create an open and friendly space for cooperation between vets, therapists and breeders that enriches each other and is of greatest benefit to them and the animals.

We take responsibility for any shortcomings, openly learn from our mistakes and strive to use them to drive us forward.
